ADS provide a full range of underwater archaeological services, ensuring compliance with all legal heritage and planning requirements, allowing the client to complete projects in a timely and cost effective manner.

We offer a variety of services from Desktop Assessment and Environmental Impact Assessment to final site resolution:

- Maritime archaeological archival research
- Desktop Assessments
- Environmental Impact Assessments and Impact Statements
- Strategic Environmental Assessments
- Archaeological monitoring of capital dredging
- Marine geo-physical surveys and archaeological interpretation of results
- Intertidal and metal detection surveys
- Underwater diver visual inspections and underwater metal detection surveys
- Underwater video and digital photographic surveys
- Underwater archaeological excavations

We offer a first class archaeological service and flexibility in response to the needs of our clients. With operational bases in Belfast, Dublin, Kells and Sligo we are uniquely placed to carry out all aspects of archaeological work across the whole of the island of Ireland. Our diving staff are available at short notice.

All diving operations are conducted with full compliance to diving at work legislation (S.I. No. 422/1981, Ireland, Diving at work regulations (NI) 2005, and S.I. 1997 No. 2776, UK). ADS diving staff are qualified HSE part 1 divers (offshore). ADS can also provide commercial dive supervisors.
